

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A preprocessor processes a first circuit description file containing a first hardware description language and a second hardware description language on the basis of a preprocessor control file. The preprocessor converts at least a portion described by the first hardware description language in the first circuit description file into the second hardware description language to create and output a second circuit description file.